

On the cover

Millions of users, cool brands and charismatic bosses. Tech's latest stars have everything—except a path to high profits: leader, page 13. The wave of very highly valued startups heading to market suggests that Silicon Valley needs to rethink its focus: briefing, page 23

• Out of the ashes of Notre Dame It is not wrong to care more about a building than about people: leader, page 14. The fire has devastated the world's most famous cathedral. But not destroyed it, page 47

• Buttigieg: unpronounceable. Electable? Pete Buttigieg's canny fusing of liberalism and tradition is a natural extension of his marriage: Lexington, page 32

• What causes coups Trying to spot the next despot to be toppled, page 56. Why coups tend to make a bad situation worse, page 54

• See the blight: crops and climate change More needs to be done to protect crops from the havoc that warmer temperatures might wreak, even in temperate regions: leader, page 14. Understanding how pathogens and climate change interact is vital. But it remains obscure, page 69
